

Missouri Market Development Program's

2006 Edition

Recycled Products
Directory

INTRODUCTION

This directory was developed to help consumers locate vendors of recycled-content products that are being manufactured and distributed in Missouri. It is also intended to support businesses in Missouri that have invested in technologies that convert materials once disposed of as waste and use them to make value-added products.

Staff from the Environmental Improvement and Energy Resources Authority (EI ERA) Missouri Market Development Program compiled the information included in the Missouri Recycled Products Directory. This publication is not an endorsement for any product, its availability, price or quality, but simply a guide to some of the recycled products available for sale in Missouri.

This Directory does not include all recycled products that are offered by your local retailer. There are many more vendors of recycled products in Missouri than those listed here. If you are a recycled product vendor in Missouri and would like to be listed, please complete and return the data sheet in the back of the Directory. There is no charge for this listing.

When you come across this symbol  you will know that product has been "remade" in Missouri!

Why Buy Recycled?

Buying recycled products helps "close the loop," creating a demand for the materials recovered in recycling collection programs. For recycling to work, recyclables collected must be returned to the economic mainstream in the form of products people buy and use. When you buy recycled, you can help recycling create jobs, build more competitive manufacturing industries, add value to Missouri's economy and protect the environment all at the same time.

There are many ideas for reusing existing items around your home? Ideas for reusing winter clothes:

Don't Lose Your Shirt - Recycle It!

We've all done it. Our collection of old clothes, blankets, and jackets piles up for years. We sort out some that are good enough to give to a clothing charity or resale store. The rest might go in the trash. Many of us do not recycled used textiles, and statistics prove it.

Manufacturers of clothing, canvas, blankets and other woven or knitted fabric recycled about 93 percent of their textile processing waste, according to the Council for Textile Recycling. However, consumers in the United States discard more than four million tons of fabric each year. Most discarded textiles go to landfills. Nationally, only a million tons are reused or recycled. About half of this total is collected by second-hand stores, charities and churches for resale or distribution here and in foreign markets. The rest goes to rag graders who decide what and how fabrics can be reused. Buyers may pay 10 cents per pound for cloth "mixed rags."

Textile fibers are divided into 150 categories, most are sold as used clothing. The second largest end use is fiber for paper, coarse yarn and padding for chairs, auto floorboards and furniture. This takes more than 25 percent of the recycled tonnage. The final major use for recycled fabric is industrial wiping and polishing clothes, such as shop towels. This uses about 20 percent of the recovered textiles and most go to markets in this country. They are used for cleaning machines, wiping up spills or polishing products before they go to market.

To find out more about textile recycling, please check the Web pages at www.textilerecycleoorg. Call the Missouri Department of Natural Resources at 1-800-361-4827 or (573) 751-5401 for further information on recycling, reuse or waste reduction options.

Pachira hemp/recycled boot. Hemp is a tough fabric made of natural fibers that's lightweight, long-wearing, easy to clean and breathable. Hemp is a renewable resource that is good for the environment.

Its strong roots help control erosion, and it needs very little water to grow. When cultivating the fibers, practically no chemicals are needed since the material naturally resists pests. And the natural look of hemp is so great that no bleaching is required.

Reclaimed antique woods; foundational limestone and brick.

Elmwood Reclaimed Timber provides reclaimed timber and stone products for interior and exterior projects including original and re-milled wide plank flooring, re-milled cabinet lumber, custom millwork, antique barn siding, antique dimensional lumber, hand hewn beams, rough sawn beams, antique pavers and foundational limestone.

Our products have 100 percent total recycled content.

We deconstruct condemned or structurally unsound barns, commercial buildings and rural structures built before 1940 and re-mill the materials for reuse. We are able to process thousands of board feet of lumber into reusable products every year without having to cut down a single tree. None of our products are treated with any chemicals or preservatives and are 100 percent old growth timber.

Did you know?

Windows have always lowered the thermal efficiency of even the best-insulated wall. Poor installation and the low insulative value of the window glass and frame historically combined to make windows a net heat loser in cold climates and an unwanted heat gainer in warm climates. Current technology combines insulative frames, multiple glazings, gas filling, thermal break spaces and window coatings to dramatically improve the thermal performance of windows.

Flooring

Tendura

TenduraPlank provides the traditional beauty of a tongue-and-groove porch without the splitting, cracking, or splintering of fir or treated lumber. By combining the warmth of wood with the durability of plastic in a composite material, TenduraPlank is made to last a lifetime.

TenduraPlank porch flooring is manufactured from plastic and by-product sawdust, which means that no new trees are timbered expressly for the purpose of creating it. Where possible, we use recycled plastic. In Missouri, look for TenduraPlank at the following authorized dealers;

There are many ideas for reusing existing items around your home? Ideas for reusing clocks:

- ♦ Use a cuckoo clock as a birdfeeder.
- ♦ Use clocks with hands for teaching kids how to tell time.
- ♦ If it is a clock with a picture built into it, leave it up for decoration.
- ♦ Take off the hands and anything else that sticks out and use as a picture frame by cutting a picture to the correct shape and size and slipping it between the glass and the clock face.

Product(s)	Recycled candles.
Recycled Content	Made with 100 percent post-industrial recycled paraffin wax.
Comments	The paraffin we used was simply used as a lubricant. Additives such as scents and color are mixed in to make the typical net recycled content of a Lookout Mountain Candle 75 percent, excluding the containers. The paraffin was pieces left over from lubricants applied to cotton apparel fibers. The wax lubricant on the fibers aids in knitting or weaving the cotton into fabrics. Small pieces, typically about 1/2 ounce each, of the paraffin are too small to be used and cotton lint left on paraffin prevents it from being re-processed back into fiber lubricant. Each and every piece of wax is cleaned of any dirt and cotton fibers left on the paraffin. The when melted it is then strained of any remaining unwanted fibers or dirt. This wax is normally discarded, but instead is used to make your candle. Help save landfill space, buy a recycled wax candle today from Lookout Mountain Candles.

Artisan Dorothy Spencer reaches back to classic days past for this chair handmade with rare recycled yardsticks that'll immediately become the best seat in the house. Colored yardsticks are extremely rare- these rulers are all naturally red, not painted- and in their previous lives were used as advertising giveaways for places like hardware stores, seed companies and dairy barns. Dorothy has uncovered just enough for this one-of-a-kind chair. Handmade in the USA.

Fire & Light

Fire & Light's glassware and plates are hand-poured and made from 91 percent recycled glass. However, due to color sensitivity they are only able to use one percent recycled glass in their Lavender color and no recycled glass in their Citrus color.

Fire & Light still strives to find new ways to incorporate recycling into our production process, whether it's tumbling broken dishes to make Sea Glass, a product used in aquariums and decorating, or using recycled beer kegs from local microbreweries as vats to cool our ladles. In Missouri, look for Fire & Light's glassware and plates at the following authorized dealer:

There are many ideas for reusing existing items around your home? Ideas for reusing mouse pads:

- ♦ Use as a cushion between wood and clamps when woodworking.
- ♦ Cut, layer and use as a wrist support for the computer keyboard.
- ♦ Cut small circles and use as "stoppers" for cabinet doors or as appliance "feet."
- ♦ Using cookie cutters, trace onto a mousepad. Cut the shape out and then dip into paint. Use to decorate your child's room or give to kids and let them dab onto paper.

We collect discarded and surplus business equipment from local, regional and national businesses. The equipment is then made available to our primary concern - the nonprofit community, and to the general public as a secondary market. Sales to the secondary markets help keep our prices lower to charities. The Surplus Exchange puts a strong emphasis on electronic recycling. Books and Magazines

Books are special. If they weren't, we wouldn't feel so guilty about tossing them. Solution time is nigh. The group called "Book Crossing" is dedicated to the idea that books, once read, should be set free. If you join their group, you can document the release of your book and track it. It is registered by a number and can be followed from owner to owner. Also, reviews and recommendations are posted all at no charge. Freed books can be left in waiting rooms, park benches, laundromats, in your work break room - anywhere you choose. Or, if you really don't care to track them, just release them into the wild independently. For more information, go to www.bookcrossing.com.

BookEnds collects used children's books (infant - 18 years old) and distributes them to schools, youth centers, homeless shelters, juvenile detention facilities and literacy programs in California. If there is no further need for more books in your community, you can mail them to BookEnds; 6520 Platt Avenue #331; West Hills, CA 91307. For more information, go to www.bookends.org.

The Bureau of Waste Prevention, Reuse and Recycling, NYC Department of Sanitation, provides a list of local organizations and national organizations based in New York City that accept book donations. For information, go to www.nycwasteless.org, click on individual then donations.
